Classification of data

1 State whether the following examples are numerical or categorical data:

a Favourite flavours

b Maximum temperature

c Daily temperature

d Types of horses

e Amount owing on layby

f Types of vegetables

g Brands of tablets

h Types of folders

i Daily UV index

j Maximum rainfall

k Favourite colours

l Colours of folders

m Brands of phones

n Maximum snowfall

o Types of dogs

p Types of fruits

q Amount remaining on interest free purchase

2 State whether the following data types are discrete or continuous:

a The number of classrooms in your school

b Daily humidity

c The ages of a group of people d The time taken to run 200 metres e Lengths of cats' whiskers f The distance from the Earth to nearby galaxies g How long it takes you to fall asleep at night h Amount of money paid for walking the dog i The number of people taller than you in your class j The top speed of different models of motorcycles k The size of people's rare coin collections l The amount of soda you drink in a day m The world record time for solving 10 Rubik's cubes n The hourly pay rate for a particular job o The number of views that a YouTube channel has p The snowfall in your city q Number of children in your sports team r The strength of an earthquake s Amount of money owing on a mortgage t Your marks in your most recent Physics test

© ClipSAT: By Mr. Mohamed Abdallah +966597688647

3 State whether the following are nominal or ordinal categorical data:

a Eye colour

b Your birthdate

c Temperature

d Favourite song

e State/territory of birth

f Year level

g Speed of light

h Position in a queue

4 Classify the following data examples as one of the following types:

- Quantitative continuous
- Quantitative discrete
- Categorical

a The workplaces of people living in Sydney b The body temperature of a hospital patient taken over a 21-hour period

c The brands of breakfast foods in a supermarket d The weights of club members e The number of people attending a netball game

5 Classify the following data examples as one of the following types:

- Numerical Discrete
- Numerical Continuous
- Categorical Ordinal
- Categorical Nominal

a Population of your town b Types of trailers in a shopping centre carpark c Heights of people at an athletics carnival d Weights of dogs

e The languages spoken in your class f The number of languages students in your town speak g The number of people at an athletics carnival h The time spent playing games each day i The number of sports equipment that you own

© ClipSAT: By Mr. Mohamed Abdallah +966597688647